

FLORA AND FAUNA ASPECTS

The historical and archeological significance of this place joins and blends well with the natural landscape. The last bastion of untouched coastline, in the middle of "Area Marina Protetta del Plemmirio", contains all varieties and species of animals and plants that inhabit the wonderful Mediterranean scrub.

Dwarf palm
(Chamaerops humilis)

Caper flower
(Capparis spinosa)

The presence of a dot-like endemism is particularly important: it is a species found only on the coast of Syracuse, that, for this reason, is called Limonium Siracusanum. Along the coast there are also special plants called halophytic such as Inula bacicci, which survive the drought because of their ability to use the water sprays coming from the sea. During the migratory season the area is populated by numerous species of wading birds and sometimes even limicolous.

Inula bacicci
(halophilic species)

Agave
(Cliffs of Punta Mola)

Kestrel
(Falco tinnunculus)

Hoopoe
(Upupa epops)

Myrtle
(Myrtus communis)

Reddish swallow
(Hirundo daurica)

Little Egret
(Egretta garzetta)

Statice
(Linomium sinuatum)
